Sounds of the Forest

Sounds of the Forest offers up a fun, foundational introduction to the atmospheric sounds of an African rainforest that are sure to fascinate every preschool learner—and zoo enthusiast. Active, rhythmical text evokes the sounds of some animals common to that environment. Detailed illustrations bring the words to life, encouraging young readers and listeners to mimic the sounds and actions of splashing, hoot, thudding, and more.

Kate Riggs is a Minnesota-based editor and author of children’s and young adult nonfiction books. In 2012, her book Dolphins was honored as the winner of the Maryland Blue Crab Young Reader Award for Transitional Nonfiction.

Fiammetta Dogi is an Italian artist who specializes in children’s books. Since receiving her education in graphic arts and illustration, she has created work for clients worldwide, with her art appearing in numerous books, magazines, and advertisements.

Spot, Spike, Spiral

Some creatures have spots. Some have spikes. Some have spirals. Some creatures have spots and spikes. Some have spots and spirals. And some have all three—spots, spikes, and spirals! Following 2018’s Dot, Stripe, Squiggle, Sarah Grace Tuttle and Miriam Nerlove have brought their love of the animal kingdom to life in this simple and striking board book, featuring the patterns and shapes of nine extraordinary creatures (which are identified at the end).

Sarah Grace Tuttle fell in love with the natural world on trips to the park and the beach as a child. With degrees in environmental studies and English, she lives in Massachusetts, where she is still enthralled by the beauty of nature.

Miriam Nerlove has spent years painting a variety of animals. She lives with her family outside Chicago. This is her second book for Creative Editions.
Beyond the Stars

Take this rocket ship to the stars! Fantastical illustrations give a nod to scientific reality while leaving room for imagination in this innovative board book. As a tale based on the scientific concepts of space travel unfolds one panel at a time, youngsters are sure to delight in the fictive twists of this journey to outer space. A small die-cut circle in the cover provides the option for a hanging display of the continuous artwork.

Kate Riggs is a Minnesota-based editor and author of children's and young adult nonfiction books. In 2012, her book Dolphins was honored as the winner of the Maryland Blue Crab Young Reader Award for Transitional Nonfiction.

Chris Sheban has illustrated several children's books for Creative Editions, including What to Do with a Box, I Met a Dinosaur, and A Night on the Range. His work has been honored with three gold and three silver medals from the Society of Illustrators. He lives near Chicago, Illinois.

Also available: What to Do with a Box BB, What to Do with a Box HC.

Lola Shapes the Sky

Lola is not like the other clouds. While they are busy making shade and rain and snow, Lola makes shapes. “Clouds make weather, not shapes!” thunders Thor. But while Thor’s thunder makes people run for cover, Lola’s fantastic shapes inspire awe and wonder. Clouds can make weather and shapes, after all. Subtly portraying values of both inspiration and function, this allegorical tale of a cloud who fights to be herself amidst criticism encourages readers to expand their imaginative horizons.

An avid, lifelong reader and a member of the Society of Children’s Book Writers and Illustrators, Wendy Greenley enjoys dreaming up unique characters for humorous stories. Lola Shapes the Sky is her first picture book.

Paolo Domeniconi lives and works in the small Italian city of Spilamberto. After gaining artistic experience in advertising and through various freelance projects in the 1990s, he became interested in children’s illustration. Working mainly in digital media, he has since illustrated almost 50 books for international publishers.

Ruby, Head High

It’s Ruby’s first day of school. She puts on her best dress, and her mother braids her hair. But six-year-old Ruby is no ordinary girl, and this first day of school is like none other. She is Ruby Bridges, one of the first African American girls to attend an all-white school in the segregated South of the 1960s. Inspired by Norman Rockwell’s iconic painting, The Problem We All Live With, and translated from its original French text, Ruby, Head High, tells the story of this historic event: the day a little girl held her head high and changed the world.

Award-winning author Irène Cohen-Janca grew up in Tunisia. With a degree in modern literature, she became a librarian before authoring novels and picture books, many of which have been translated into other languages. Today, she lives in France, where she continues to work as a librarian.

Marc Daniau studied at Paris’s Académie Charpentier. He still lives near Paris, where he draws and paints for newspapers, theater posters, comics, and children’s books.
Afternoon on a Hill

A visual treatment of a classic poem, this warm and whimsical title celebrates the beauty and enjoyment of nature. While text expresses the joys of being out in the natural world as “the gladdest thing under the sun,” imaginative illustrations conjure a sense of wonder and delight. Edna St. Vincent Millay’s beloved poem shines and sparkles in this evocative picture book.

Born in 1892, Edna St. Vincent Millay attended Vassar College before becoming a respected, Pulitzer Prize–winning poet. She died in 1950.

Paolo Domeniconi lives and works in the small Italian city of Spilamberto. After gaining artistic experience in advertising and through various freelance projects in the 1990s, he became interested in children’s illustration. Working mainly in digital media, he has since illustrated almost 50 books for international publishers.
